Chicago has enough unvaccinated neighboring towns in the state are to increase it. To-day seven tramps, with the filthy disease, came from Canada and walked into the health office. Dr. Bryant will not be surprising if those seven thirty people to-night. Joseph Hall recently arrived in New York from the steamer Albion, walked into the office very bad case. He was sent to the hospital at once. A lady residing on Ohio street found that her baby had been taken with the disease, and as it would be dangerous for her to stop nursing it during the time it was obliged to remain with it and was compelled to remain with the little one, with almost the certainty of taking the disease herself. Food was sent outside of the house.

"Many of the city are fast becoming alarmed at the prevalence and growth of smallpox in this city. The deaths to-day were five; but reliable physicians state that although both cases are overlooked, not one-twentieth are known to the authorities. Many hide in their houses and others break out there, lest the fact should injure their trade, and in this way the disease is spread by wholesale, despite the almost universal vaccine panels, which now prevail in every city. The country towns contiguous to the city, and incoming passengers from the health officer mingle with the people, and frequently get into the city before the board of health reports the cases to-day.

A Doubtful Question.

Members of the board of supervisors will hold a secret caucus on Saturday morning, to consider the proposed Ocean Shore Railroad which franchise. Some members advocate holding an open session to consider the same subject before the franchise order is passed to print. This impression prevails that the Ocean Shore franchise will not be granted by the board. It is reported that several supervisors have concluded, after careful examination of the order, that the grant would be in the nature of an exclusive privilege and it is suspected very doubtful now whether a majority of the members would vote for the order, even if the proposed amendments were adopted.

No better man walked our streets than W. Y. Wyckoff, and his sudden death has cast a pall over the whole community. SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

CORK, Jan. 19.—At the assizes to-day the outlaw leader, Connell, pleaded guilty to various charges against him. He will be a witness for other cases in which members of his band are defendants. At the time of his arrest, during the latter part of December, for having arms in a proclaimed district, Connell was already suspended of being the leader of a band which had committed outrages, rendering the district of Mitchelstown one of the most notorious in Ireland. His arrest took place at Minahra under exciting circumstances. A large force of police, acting on private information, surrounded the house of Connell, a farmer living in a lonely district near Mushra mountains. Upon knocking, the police were admitted, and two of them rushed up stairs to find Connell in bed, but dressed. He endeavored to divest himself of his waistcoat, but the police after fierce struggles with him, obtained the garment and found in one of the pockets a gold watch stolen from a man named Cudmore during a recent moonlight raid. They also found in his possession a list of persons who had committed offenses against the unwritten law of the robber society, and which were consequently marked for vengeance. The list is countersigned with Rectilous names, and concluded thus: "Examined and approved of as work for the right squad. Captain Moonlight." Among the intended victims were James Sullivan and James Coorley, farmers, who were to be shot on suspicion of paying rent; Sullivan's two daughters, whose hair was to be cut to the bone, one for having spoken to a policeman, and the other for dealing with proscribed persons. Other persons were mentioned whose ears were to be cut off for lesser offenses. In consequence of documents found on Connell, five young men were arrested in a mill, named Ketleler, Conner, Leahy, Farrell and Hurley. Farrell and Leahy being identified as belonging to a party implicated in an attack on the house of Mrs. Fitzgerald.

Nihilist Trials Commenced.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 18.—The trial of Sankowski and Melnikoff commenced yesterday at 2:30, with closed doors, before a council of war. The accused are each about 29 years old, and insignificant of appearance. Melnikoff is the most intelligent looking of the two. From Sankowski's examination it appeared that he had no political motive for the attempt; that he was in great misery and had contemplated suicide; that he was persuaded by Melnikoff to commit the attempt on General Tcherevina's life, so as to end his days with eclat. All evidence went to confirm the belief that accused had no relations with the revolutionary party. The crime therefore was as senseless in its object as that of Guiteau. The pleadings commenced this morning, and judgment of the court will probably be delivered this evening.

Nihilists Sentenced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Special cables from St. Petersburg: The trial of Sankowsky and Molnakoff, implicated in an attempt to assassinate General Tcherevinine, ended in a sentence of twenty years at penal servitude in the mines of Siberia. CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.

The morning hour was then taken up, the unfinished business being the bill to authorize the use of appropriations for examining and locating harbors, canals, &c., and [illegible] for the survey of certain routes in the Rocky Mountains and Pacific slope.

The president pro tem. submitted the response of the secretary of the interior to the resolution of the 14th inst. asking whether the lands granted to the Northern Pacific, and in connection therewith the action of ex-Secretary Schurz. It was to be referred to the railroad committee, but on suggestion of Edmunds it was referred to the judiciary committee.

Davis' bill to permit Justice Hunt of the supreme court to be retired, passed, 31 to 11.

Ferry and Slater voted no.

The Sunset Pass funding bill was considered. Windom opposed the bill as an unnecessary experiment and costly. In four years at the present rate, the government would have paid off $51,000,000. He discussed the subject fully.

Hill of Georgia said Windom's plan of commuting bonds at 4½ per cent. though economical was an usurpation and dangerous.

Windom said the law merely waived 2½ per cent. of his previous four per cent. interest.

Hill said this was a government contract, not a private one, and congress alone could dictate terms.

This discussion ran along for some time, when the senate adjourned to Monday.

House.

Burrows, of Michigan, made a personal statement that he was responsible for his own sins, but not those of others. It has been reported as introducing a bill to [illegible] national banks, but Burroughs, of Missouri, he said, would like all the honor of introducing the bill.

The house considered the report of the committee on rules increasing the membership of committees.

Bulford having obtain ed five minutes' time from Page, who was entitled to the floor, ridiculed the pending proposition. He wanted to know why Pennsylvania should not be satisfied with the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, coinage committee and committee on public expenditures. He thought the departure from the old system in giving the latter chairmanship to his distinguished friend Randall was a good one. Then there was the glorious state of Wisconsin, which had got the chairmanship of the Pacific railroads committee, although there was no Pacific railroad within a thousand miles of her border, and the chairmanship of the foreign affairs committee, by which she had control of diplomatic matters in Germany, France, Austria, Hungary, Turkey and all other foreign lands. He asked why in the name of reason and conscience Wisconsin was not satisfied with this. He knew there was so much talent, intelligence, brain and stalwart energy in the house that it was impossible for the speaker to assign to any great man [illegible] Laughter.] He [illegible] there suggested in reason that all members be assigned alphabetically to the committees on ways and means and on appropriations, all down to the letter L, giving the former and all the rest to the latter; and then he would propose that every member be allowed only clerk and two bootblacks. [Laughter.]

McLane opposed the amendment offered yesterday by Laing, giving to the committee for the improvement of the Mississippi river the same right to report appropriation bills for that purpose as the committee on appropriations now has. He said it was bad judgment if not in bad taste for gentlemen who represent the Mississippi valley to arrogate to the commerce of that river so much greater importance than attached to the other commerce of the country.

Dunnell also opposed the amendment and declared that the interests of the Mississippi river and its tributaries were not observed by leaving them to the committee on commerce. Page spoke to the same effect and promised that the committee on commerce would report a harbor bill that would be quoted to an endorsement and could not be railroaded through the house under suspension of rules and that the bill would contain appropriations for every great, important and needed improvement.

King was in favor the amendment but said he would like the committee on commerce to see how promises were kept.

Randall allowed how wise it was to increase committees as the business of the house was increasing rapidly and referred to the bills sent to committees, which amounted to from forty to fifty-nine to each member of a committee already.

There was a long running discussion, in which Randall bore a chief part on the mode of facilitating business in the house and as to the precedence of committee reports.

Briggs interposed—Is up this everlasting talk and go to work.

Robinson suggested to get this out of the house and begin work and when a gentleman moved to adjourn from Thursday to Monday vote him down. It is by wearing hard that we will deserve honor and not by grumbling and growling because we are not first, second or third on a committee.

Robeson moved the previous question, which was seconded.

Robinson complained that the speaker had not allowed him to speak on the privilege question and had not kept order in the house.

In closing the debate Williams of Wisconsin declared Wisconsin had received no promises or rewards for voting for the speaker. He paid a warm tribute to the speaker.

Robeson agreed with Horr that pianter could more sore heads, but this report did not attempt it; it merely attempted to give all parts of the country their representation on committees.

Joyce moved to recommit the report and amendments.

Springer moved to recommit, with instructions to report a rule for the observance of exact proportion in politics and parties in making committees, and that the minority have the right to designate its members; rules out.

Joyce's motion was agreed to—159 to 99. Among the ayes were Cassidy, Scales, Pacheco and Rosecrans, and among the nays Page.

Springer announced the death of Burnside, and Monday next at 2 P. M. was assigned for eulogies.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

Scoville Concludes His Argument to the Jury.

GUITEAU WILL PROBABLY ADDRESS THEM TO-DAY.

Judge Porter not Well Enough to Make a Speech, and Court Will Probably Adjourn Until Monday.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Scoville resumed his argument this morning:

Guiteau brought into court with him a roll of manuscript, said to be an elaborate preface to his speech, which has already been published. His counsel seem to think this unfriendly, but Judge Cox will allow him under certain conditions and restrictions to address the jury when Scoville has concluded.

Scoville called attention to the testimony of Dr. Hamilton, one of the government conspirators, as he called him. He read from his testimony, and said that from the very start Dr. Hamilton had perverted his testimony and studiously made use of the very strongest adjectives, showing the intensity of his feeling, as though every effort on his part was designed to secure beyond peradventure the conviction of the prisoner. In short, his feelings led him to transcend the bounds of truth, and these expressions were used by him, as it appears to me, for the express purpose of manufacturing a feeling in your minds against the prisoner.

Scoville produced a diagram showing a section of the prisoner's head.

"That's not in evidence," said Corkhill.

"It is," replied Scoville, "an exact fac simile of the diagram you put in." Reaching it across the table to the district attorney. "You can take it and see that it is so."

Corkhill (shaking his head contemptuously)—Impose it on the jury, if you wish. Don't put it on me.

Scoville (earnestly)—I will take a rule and make measurements right here before the jury.

Corkhill—Oh, don't, your speech is bad enough. Your testimony will be worse.

Scoville—[half apologetically]—Well, Col. Corkhill, I am doing the best I can, and I am honestly endeavoring to get the truth before the jury.

Scoville continued with frequent interruptions on the part of the district attorney. Taking up the diagram of Guiteau's head, offered in evidence by Dr. Hamilton, Scoville said: "I propose to show you that Dr. Kempster lied, when he told you this diagram was a correct representation of Guiteau's head. He attempted to convince you Guiteau had an unusually symmetrical head, and I propose to show you his evidence in this respect was brutally false." Scoville continued to discuss the subject of the diagrams.

Guiteau took advantage of the pause and called out, "The district attorney pays out of money. He can't pay these fellows until he can get an extra appropriation from congress.

Scoville then went on to say that the laws are framed for punishment of sane people, not the insane. When a man has overstepped the boundary line of sanity and has committed a crime he should not be punished as should a sane man. If you find a reasonable doubt, as the law mercifully declares, of his sanity, you shall give him the benefit of it. The object of human punishment is not for revenge.

At the conclusion of Scoville's argument Corkhill stated that on behalf of the prosecution he would withdraw all objections to Guiteau's addressing the jury; that this trial has been long and expensive, and he did not desire to give any opportunity for an objection upon which to form a demand for a new trial.

Reed with some vehemence maintained that the district attorney had no right to attempt to find fence the jury by such imputations as he had just made.

Guiteau—I appreciate this unexpected courtesy of Corkhill, and I don't wholly agree with Reed, your honor.

Judge Cox said he had decided to allow prisoner to speak.

Davidge, who had just come in, inquired, "Is the prisoner to speak, your honor? If so, I would like to inquire about how much time he will occupy."

Guiteau—"I shall deliver to the jury my speech which has been published in all newspapers."

Davidge—"I have not seen it."

Guiteau—"Well, I will. I advise you to get it at once and read it. I shall start about two hours, your honor. I speak rapidly."

As Guiteau was not prepared to speak to-day, court adjourned till to-morrow morning.

It is understood that Judge Porter was in quite feeble health, and probably would be unable to speak before Monday. It is probable, therefore, court will adjourn to-morrow until Tuesday.

What Guiteau's diary may do.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A friend of one of the jury visited the National hotel last evening and walking through the corridors met a juryman. The juryman in question was at that time walking up and down the room while the bailiff in charge of the jury was absent for some reason. Seizing the opportunity for a word with a friend unobserved the juryman stopped and said, "Come and see me next Saturday evening."

His friend said, "Why, will you be at home at that time?"

"Yes, you may be certain," said the juryman, "we will be through with the case entirely Saturday night."

Here the two parted as the returning steps of the bailiff warned the juryman to close the conversation. The inference, however, was very plain and distinct, that the jury does not expect to be with any time on Guiteau and a verdict will be rendered within an hour or some corresponding brief period of time after the court has given the final charge. That verdict will be "guilty of murder in the first degree," is now the prevailing impression.

An Episode in the Guiteau Trial.

As Guiteau was being taken out of the court room at recess to-day he stopped to speak to Scoville. When bailiff Tall attempted to move him along Guiteau turned angrily to Tall saying, "Leave yourself." "Come, come," said Tall emphat cally, trying to push prisoner. "Let me alone," shouted Guiteau; "mind your own business." Tall having applied some pressure to Guiteau the latter with his manacled hands struck that officer in the breast, when he was at once seized by officers and turned out of the court room.

COURTS AND JUSTICE.

The people want to hear less of the alleged majesty of the law and more of the enforcement of actual justice. It is this feeling that causes action like that taken by the people of Seattle to receive wide approval. No government, when assaults are made upon its life, allows itself to be tied, shackled and manacled by constitution and laws. No community, when it sees the necessity of extraordinary measures to protect the lives of its members against murderers who defy the law and its uncertain methods, is going to submit to repetition of murders without end just because somebody sets up the law as a thing to be blindly worshiped, and speaks platitudes about its "majesty." Law was ordained for protection of society, not to bind society hand and foot and give it over to the tender mercies of criminals. In other words the law is not above the people; the people are above the law. Of course we mean the whole people; for it is against the whole people that crimes like those avenged at Seattle are committed. It is no wonder that the people so often become impatient with the tardy enforcement of the law, or worse, the defeat of its purposes through technical expedients and delays. They see their courts organized and conducted not to punish crimes but to try to find methods through which criminals may be protected. From first to last every proceeding in a criminal court is conducted with a view to discovery of some method to circumvent the law and defeat justice. The practice is not only tolerated by the courts, but is invited and encouraged by them. Hence courts and lawyers, under modern criminal practice, are virtually in a league against society and on the side of criminals. The Guiteau trial, for example, has been one long farce—a proceeding not for administration of justice but for obstruction of it. So everywhere, when a heinous crime is committed, the effort is not to punish the offender, but to find a way to get him clear; and judges, particularly those who have been long on the bench, constantly connive at the proceeding, because they have learned to worship the "precedent" which the technical lawyer is able to cite. Every effort is made, usually with the approval of the court to confuse and befog the jury, to entangle its judgment in a labyrinth of phrases, to impress it with an idea of the sanctity of technical absurdities, and to get a verdict against justice through adherence to meaningless forms. Juries must be made of good material if they can stand against this habitual practice and the instructions from the bench, which are usually in full accord with it. Herein lie some of the reasons why the people want to hear less of the alleged majesty of the law and more of the enforcement of actual justice. Criminals too often juggle with the law, and judges, infatuated with legal technicalities, no matter how absurd, encourage the proceeding. What wonder then that, when to the knowledge that justice, in attendance upon courts, is not only blindfolded, but pinioned too, there is added a series of outrages upon life and property like those at Seattle, the people rise up, set justice free and enable her for the time to catch the nearest way? To "expedite justice," on occasion, therefore serves a good end. The people are tired of seeing the laws administered for the protection of the criminal classes. They think the policy ought to be exactly reversed; that the laws should be administered and enforced upon a system under which punishment would follow swiftly upon the heels of crime, and that courts, instead of throwing barriers around the safety and comfort of criminals, ought rather to protect the public. When courts do all this in a prompt and effective manner, then the old dry-nurses of the law who sit on the bench to worship formulas of technical jugglery through which justice is balked and criminals are enabled to escape, will not have occasion to run in a theatrical manner with knife in hand to cut down criminals who have met at the hands of an outraged community their just deserts.

RAILWAY FORECLOSURES.

A railway journal of Chicago gives a statement of the known foreclosure sales of the railways in the United States during the year 1881. It appears that twenty-nine roads, with an aggregate length of 2617 miles and an apparent investment of $51,577,600 in capital stock and $76,646,900 in bonds and other indebtedness, making a total of $128,923,500 have been sold during 1881 to wind up their long outstanding obligations. The past year has been one of such general prosperity and capital has been invested so lavishly in new railway enterprises that the general impression doubtless has been that the era of railway foreclosures was ended. Hence these totals may seem surprising. It should be remembered, however, that the bankruptcy of these roads commenced years ago, and that they have been dragging along through the slow process of receivorships and foreclosure suits to the inevitable though long-deferred result of sale and reorganization. The creditors of these companies, however, have shared in the increased prosperity of the country by being able to obtain far better terms at the sale of roads than they could have obtained a few years ago; so that the law's delays in these cases have generally proved in the long run advantageous. During the past six years, according to the figures compiled by the railway journal referred to, no less than 257 roads, with a mileage of nearly 28,000 miles and a nominal capital investment of about $126,400,000 have passed from the hands of the the original owners by means of bankruptcy foreclosure proceedings. This represents something over 20 per cent. of the total mileage and of the total reported railway capital of the country in 1881. These figures are almost appalling, and show the extremely hazardous nature of investments in railway construction, at least in the past decade. While it is true that the nominal capital stock does not always represent an actual investment in that amount of money, and that in many cases bonds were sold at less than their par value; still, after every proper deduction is made, the aggregate of loss and ruin which the bankruptcy of these properties means is truly startling.

Four important agricultural conventions are to be held in Washington this winter under the supervision of Commissioner Loring, which promise to be very valuable. One will consider the subject of agricultural colleges and kindred topics in which the farming public is interested; the second the cereal crops; the third live stock; and the fourth vine culture. The conventions will be composed of representative men from each branch of this great interest, from almost every section of the union, whose views and conclusions can hardly fail to be of value, not only to the department, but to the great productive industries which they will represent.

Seattle considers herself a sort of municipal hero. The Post-Intelligencer in an article approving the work of the committee of safety says: "It will check the commission of crime in a thousand places, and in this way the whole nation has been placed under a debt of gratitude to the citizens of our city."

MR. IRELAND'S LETTER.

We print to-day a letter from Mr. D. C. Ireland of Astoria, relating to the Columbia river bar. Its tone is consistent with the writer's position during the past half dozen years or longer, as the champion of the towage and pilotage system at the mouth of the Columbia. He says that the tug boats now in service are able to do all that can be done, and that the thing needed is deepening of the channel. The inference from Mr. Ireland's statements would be that THE OREGONIAN had opposed or disregarded the importance of improving the bar which is not true. We have asserted that tugs of greater weight and power than the three small boats now on the bar, would better serve the commerce of the river and to a great extent stop the clamor which is so annoying and harmful. We have said further that much of the complaint which has damaged the reputation of the Columbia river bar, was due to enormous overcharges for towage and to arbitrary and vicious methods of conducting the business. Instances confirming both charges are unfortunately too common. They are matters of common fame and Mr. Ireland has no excuse for ignorance if he really be ignorant. The fact that the "Levi G. Burgess" drawing twenty-one feet is beating about outside and does not enter does not prove that she cannot enter. Only last week the "Beecroft," drawing as Mr. Ireland states twenty-one and a half feet passed out without touching. Surely the "Burgess," half a foot lighter, can come in unless the timidity of her master prevents it. This timidity—unless it be based upon fear that the pilots cannot direct the course or the tugs lack power to follow it—is baseless. With a depth of twenty-three feet on the bar at mean high tide, a ship twenty-one feet deep need not hesitate to enter. Of course it would not be safe during a storm or the prevalence of a heavy swell to go on the bar, nor would it be on any other bar. The "Burgess" case seems to be merely the fear of a ship-master that a vessel drawing twenty-one feet cannot pass through a twenty-three foot channel, where the practicability of the passage has been demonstrated a score of times, and within a week under his own observation. No one questions the importance of improving the Columbia river bar and THE OREGONIAN has always urged it. But even if it were improved and its permanent depth increased to thirty feet, its exposed position and strong tides would demand for the first class ships which come to it, the service of tugs of the first class.

A dispatch from Astoria, received after the above was in type, says that the "Burgess" has arrived in. Comment would be waste of words.

POLITICAL SPECULATIONS.

A class of political speculations now life challenge attention by the persistence and confidence with which they are bruited. They are based on a forecast of 1884, which professes to see a new distribution and combination of political forces for the election of that year. Since the overthrow of "stalwartism" of the Bourbon type in Virginia, many profess to see in the politics of the several states of the hitherto solid south a series of dissolving views. It is part of the theory on which the expectation of new things is based that just so soon as the solid south ceases to be a menace there will be corresponding disintegration of the republican party of the north. Men affect to see in Mr. Blaine the man who can take advantage of the new situation. They dilate upon his great ability, upon his political ambition, upon his former nearness to success and his legitimate inheritance to the policy and principles of President Garfield. These speculators think they see signs of favor for Mr. Blaine in the south, with corresponding backing on the part of the liberal republicans of the north. They think he, or another, will appear as a new Greeley, in a happier day, with the olive branch of nationality in his hand, soliciting the southern, and perhaps distinctively the democratic vote. Upon the ticket these dreamers fancy they see the name of Joseph E. Brown or some other liberal southerner who would be the least distasteful to the north and yet who could command the respect and support of the south. Behind this phalanx of liberals, or nationals, as they may be termed, will appear the capitalists of Boston and New York and the railroad kings. The bands would play national airs and the speeches would be of the most intensely practical and patriotic character. Against this force, it is fancied, the Grant stalwart party will be arrayed. Here the vivid imagination of the prophets grows misty, and the stalwart camp is overhung by a cloud that conceals any clear discernment of persons. Whether it will be a third-term struggle under Grant or a rally for Arthur under the support of Grant and Conkling, or whether it shall be the bona fide campaign of the hero of Utica himself, does not appear. But at any rate many dealers in futures are sure that the contest will be between parties arrayed in some such style under such leaders. A noticeable and curious feature of the scheme is the apparent favor with which it is entertained and discussed by not a few democratic papers of liberal tendencies in the southern states.

Some of the London papers have preserved common sense in reference to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty issue. The St. James' Gazette concludes a moderate article thus: "Nor can we mistake the significance of the elaborate parallel which Mr. Blaine draws between the policy of England with respect to her route to India and the policy which he holds to be imposed upon America with respect to her means of military transit between her Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We repeat that we see nothing in all this to call for any reasonable complaint on the part of Englishmen. We find it quite natural that America, having learned her strength, should desire to use it for the extension of influence and empire. It is what we have ourselves done persistently in the past, and still do by fits and starts in the present; it is what all growing and vigorous nations will inevitably begin to do at some period of their history."

Few, comparatively, of the great commercial cities of the world are directly upon ocean harbors. Hamburg, the greatest maritime city of the European continent is on the Elbe river, 60 miles from the ocean; Bremen is 40 miles from the ocean; Calcutta, 80 miles; Canton, 80 miles; Glasgow, 21 miles; London, 60 miles; New Orleans, 100 miles; Baltimore, 250 miles; Philadelphia, 96 miles, and Montreal, 620 miles.

The telegraph reports from half a dozen states, that smallpox is increasing at a frightful rate. Congress will be asked to take measures to prevent its further spread; but just what congress will be able to do in the matter nobody has told.

The fact that Mr. Villard has ordered construction to begin at once at Roseburg on the Oregon and California extension would seem to set at rest all rumors of a "new deal" in the management of that road.

CITY.

ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED.—Yesterday morning about 5 o'clock Coroner Gormely was notified that the body of a man was floating in the log boom near Ainsworth & Dunbar's sawmill. He had the body conveyed to the morgue. The man was about five feet eight inches high, with heavy, dark brown moustache, about one hundred and eighty pounds, and was dressed in two light-colored flannel shirts, white undershirt and blue flannel pants. In the afternoon the following jury was empaneled: A. J. Moses, foreman; P. Faire, M. Brown, Wm. Greene and A. Smith. Captain Ainsworth was subpœnaed as a witness, and stated that the remains were those of Jack Smith, better known as "Black Sullivan," that he had shipped as fireman of the steamboat Dixie Thompson during last November; the last time he saw the deceased alive was in Astoria last Christmas Eve. The fireman of the E. N. Cooke, Dr. W. B. Cardwell stated, when called as a witness, that to his knowledge the cause of his death by drowning. Various other witnesses were called who identified the body as Jack Sullivan. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental drowning.

UNNECESSARY ACCIDENT.—Last night, about 9 o'clock, J. W. Nail, of Freeport, Washington Territory, while trying to find his way to the steamer Toledo, lying at the foot of Yamhill street, walked the lower deck into the slip below, disappearing his left shoulder, bruising his arms and breaking his left. He was rendered partially insensible by the fall, but after arising wandered down the dock, where he was found by Policeman Hall and Collins, who took him to Dr. Taylor's office, where his arm was set and bandaged, after which he was taken aboard the Toledo. It seems a common council of this city can never be made to understand the importance of protecting the public against such accidents. It is only a matter of the slightest that they happen. This is the fifth within the last two years who has received serious injuries, two of which proved fatal, and the time has come when something should be done to prevent recurrences. If the council cannot force owners and lessees of wharfs to guard against accidents, they can at least furnish the lamp posts.

WORK.—THE OREGONIAN's special agent at Lake Pea d'Oreille writes under date of the 15th: The temporary toe blockade of the northwest corner of the lake, dating from the 1st, was broken on the 16th by Superintendent Wyckoff, who with characteristic energy, in taking the little steamer Clande Hallett, the schoolhouse of the old settlers who had a partial stoppage of operations. Mr. Wyckoff is pushing the work beyond the capacity of his mills to furnish the necessary stringers, ties, etc. Grading forces all being moved to the river and beyond, and the work progressing. Ex-Postmaster Geo. E. Cole is pushing stock, men and supplies to Pack river, where he will vigorously at work on his contract for mail piles.

PARDONS GRANTED.—Gov. Thayer has remitted the sentence of Charles Coburn, a boy in the Oregon penitentiary, sent from Multnomah county for the term of three years from November 29, 1879, for the crime of burglary. Sentence remitted on account of extra time at work on the insane asylum. Also that of Jim Hill, sent from Clatsop county, for the term of two years from August 29, 1879, for the crime of rape. Executive clemency in this case was based upon a petition unanimously signed by the Clatsop county, and upon recommendation of the district attorney who prosecuted said case.

DEATH.—The city marshal of East Portland late yesterday found a young woman, probably twenty years old, lying on a quilt in an empty room in the Oriental building. She would not tell her name, but said she came from Portland and had not been home a mother. He secured lodging for the night, but early yesterday morning her condition had become apparently worse. No clue to her identity or residence has been ascertained.

DEATH.—Thursday morning at Rev. J. H. Wilbur's residence in Portland was leaving the city on the morning train, he had a sudden attack of heart disease, which rendered it necessary to return him to the house. He was taken to the residence of Mr. Wilbur, where after a careful examination Dr. Wilbur announced it a very severe attack and probably fatal. He was resting somewhat easier at last night.

DEATH.—Capt. Starr, of the schooner Volante, whose safety many fears were expressed in letters to THE OREGONIAN from Tillamook, died on the 15th inst. that he arrived there with everything in good order, after a long passage on account of stormy weather. He had a cargo of oysters and salmon for Portland. The vessel had not arrived in Tillamook on the 16th.

THE FOUNDERY.—About noon Thursday a fire occurred at Payne's foundry in East Portland, on account of dissatisfaction felt by a lot of men who were refused work. They were in for a time, as the whole force at work came to the office of Payne, who was trying to quiet them, and had been with them had not been any trouble at all in a foundry.

THE NEW STEAMER.—The new steamer Toledo arrived at Yaquina Bay last Friday. She was only two hours ahead, and found fourteen vessels on the bar. She steamed straight up to the mills works, and landed her freight, thence to the Oneatta saw mills, and then returned to leave the remainder of the 300 tons of her cargo.

A CLOSE CALL.—Ah Gee got a full benefit in the police court yesterday, and all for larceny. He was given thirty days in jail for stealing some clothes for getting away with a strange quantity of gold dust, $23 for leading two hand saws from a carpenter shop. None of the articles were found, and he will serve ninety-seven days.

RUNAWAY.—Yesterday afternoon a horse belonging to J. B. Montgomery broke away from the stable where hitched with a light buggy, and after running a distance suddenly fell near the corner of Second and Main streets and broke his left fore ankle. A veterinary surgeon was called, and he could probably cure the animal.

ARREST.—Henry White, alias "Big Hank," was sentenced to five days in the county jail for assault and battery committed on Patrick Kelly Thursday night in the Scandinavian saloon. He was in point of fact fined $10, but preferred to put it out to paying the money.

ARRESTED.—Yesterday, Bishop Morris arrested Mr. Macleay a block near the residence of A. Johnson on the beautiful plateau on D street, just beyond the city limits, and commanded for St. Helen's Mail in future at the price paid is reported $8000.

The grand jury has charged George Lee, who was arrested for stealing a revolver from the person of the proprietor of the Iowa saloon, with larceny. He was brought in the state circuit court yesterday until Monday to plead.

DISASTER.—The American bark Vesuvius which left Puget Sound a few days ago left for the river again and was reported outside the bar.

The owners, very much dissatisfied with the action, discharged him, and the vessel is under a new master.

CHARGE FOR DESERTION.—A soldier named Smith was tried by court-martial not long since for desertion, and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. He left on the Columbia with an officer, on route for the penitentiary.

OLD PIONEERS.—Mr. Wm. T. Templeton of this city, father of Dr. Templeton of this city, died at his home near Brownsville yesterday. Deceased was 72 years old and had lived in Linn county since 1847. His disease was dropsy of the heart.

IRON REPAIRS.—The British bark Napier, which left this port November 18th with a cargo of wheat for Cork for orders, put into Valparaiso previous to January 19th, in a damaged condition, after which she was compelled to jettison a portion of her cargo.

PUBLIC MEETING.—The government appropriation for that purpose being nearly, if not quite, exhausted, the board of trade will hold a meeting at their rooms this afternoon to devise means for carrying on the work of dredging St. Helen's bar.

DEAD LETTERS.—For the past eighteen hours there has been a continual run of people to THE OREGONIAN counting room with letters addressed to "Dead Letter," who, like others expecting letters from the dead office, will please call for such.

THE PACIFIC HOUSE.—C. A. Plummer & Co. are fitting up the Pacific House, No. 90, Front street, for a wholesale drug house. The gentlemen come from Albany, where they have been engaged for some years in that business.

Cards, Valentines and Masks, at N. Y. Novelty Store, 84 First street.

THE "HARVEST HOME" WRECKED

Ten Miles North of Cape Disappointment.—The Loss Attributed to a Defective Chronometer.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

ASTORIA, Jan. 20, 3 P. M.—The American bark Harvest Home, from San Francisco to Puget Sound, is wrecked on the beach 10 miles north of the Columbia river.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

ASTORIA, Jan. 20—5 P. M.—Capt. A. Mitchell of the bark Harvest Home, from San Francisco, Jan. 4th, for Port Townsend, has just arrived and reports that on the 16th, at noon, by observation, the vessel was 325 miles from Cape Flattery, bearing N. E. half N. by compass. At midnight, steering N. E. by N. had made 96 miles by patent log. Half an hour after, the weather being thick, the vessel struck on the sandy beach, daylight showing her position to be 10 miles north of Cape Hancock. At low tide we could walk around the vessel. I attribute the loss of the vessel solely to a defective chronometer. According to it I should have been 50 miles off shore. Have had the same chronometer eight years. It never failed before. Left ship this morning for Astoria, six feet water then in hold, had 200 tons merchandise for Port Townsend, which the crew were engaged in removing. Capt. Matson has no fear of the vessel can be saved; all hands were saved; cargo is being removed to Eaglehawk's farm.

[The Harvest Home is owned by Preston, McKinnon & Co. of San Francisco. She was built in 1868 and has been engaged ever since in the coasting trade. Her registered tonnage is 768. She was last surveyed in 1878, and was valued at about $30,000.]

THE COLUMBIA BAR.

A Letter on the Subject by ex-Mayor Ireland of Astoria.

ASTORIA, Jan. 20, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

One of the greatest drawbacks to the work of securing appropriations for the Columbia river bar improvement is the prevailing disposition on the part of the inland press and people to find fault with the towage and pilotage system at Astoria. All their lives pea-pie of Astoria have been accustomed to listening to some sort of harsh criticisms from the valley—and our bellow critters up that way seem to find it very hard to settle down to the new order of affairs which demands the improvement of the Columbian gateway. The talk of powerful tug boats on the bar is gradually becoming better understood, and there will soon be no longer any use of beating around the fact that it is not powerful tug boats alone that are needed, but an absolute and permanent improvement of the entrances.

Commenting upon the final departure of the ship Becroft on last Monday, THE OREGONIAN of the 16th says: "For more than forty days she lay idly at anchor waiting for a chance to cross bar. Owing to her deep draught—22 feet 6 inches—it was necessary to wait the favor of wind and tide, and several times during the past forty days it would have been impossible for her to have gone to sea, but these occasions have been comparatively brief. If there had been at Astoria a tug boat of sufficient size and power to handle large ships, the Becroft could safely have put promptly to sea, etc."

It is unjust to place these accusations at the door of Astoria, and it is wrong to charge that "the commerce of the Columbia has suffered an outrageous loss of five months." No person in Oregon has regarded the commerce of the Columbia river more grantitous favors than has Capt. Flavel. In the case of the Becroft it is true that she did lay idly at anchor waiting for a chance to cross bar forty days. A large fleet of other vessels have done the same this winter, and many are still detained. Even the fleet of steamships have all been delayed for days, and at one time the entire fleet, Columbia, State, Queen and Chester, were all in here at once, leaving nothing to take the place on the San Francisco end of the line until the Columbia and State, both sailing the same day from this port, reached San Francisco completely off their regular sailing dates.

During the detention of the Becroft—which vessel by the way only draws 22½ feet, not 22½ as stated—there was not a single day when it would have been possible for her to go to sea, not of the most powerful tug boat could have been here to hitch on to her. It would have been a splendid good time to demonstrate the fact if not even the powerful Tacoma could have done better; and we are only too sorry that that tug was not here to silence some of those adverse criticisms by practical proof. Illustrating the fact that she could not have taken a single vessel more to sea, during all that time, than did the Astoria, Fearless and Brenham. Captain Christie of the Becroft, after getting to sea, wrote as follows to Capt. Flavel:

SHIP BECROFT, Jan. 16, 1882.

George Flavel, Esq.—SIR: I am glad to inform you that my ship got over the bar all right, without touching, and I hope I will never have to come over it again till there is a deeper channel. That's just all there is of it. There are now opposition pilots on the bar, and there are three good tug boats employed in the service. No better tugs could render more service, hence it should clearly be seen that what is wanted is a deeper channel, and no amount of "small talk to fill in the chinks" will provide the means for such improvement. On the contrary, it only cripples and delays matters. Let us have a fair understanding of the subject and pull together. That is what Astoria wants.

Of the fleet outside, unable to enter, a word may be said. On the 18th of December, 1875, the ship Frank N. Thayer, Captain Sherritt, sailed from the Columbia river with a cargo of flour for Europe. She nearly knocked her bottom out, as Capt. S. expresses it, but still he comes back again, this time in the ship Levi G. Burgess. Thirty-one days have passed since Capt. Sherritt approached the Columbia river entrance, and still his vessel is outside. Last Monday, sick of knocking about in sight of land, he took his family off the ship and came to Astoria by the tug Brenham, and is now quartered at the Occident hotel. The Burgess is a ship of 1616 tons, laden with railway materials from an Atlantic port, and draws 21 feet. Capt. Sherritt to-day informed your correspondent that all the tug boats in christendom could not bring his vessel in, simply because there is not water enough in the channel to float so large a ship in rough weather. Capt. Sherritt expects to be towed to go either to Puget Sound or San Francisco to discharge his cargo, destined for Portland.

Now, the Astoria people regret this condition of affairs as much as anybody can; but they realize that these things may only be altered by honest, bona fide representations to congress to secure ample appropriations for practical bar improvements. In the case of the Levi G. Burgess, as in hundreds of other cases, Capt. Flavel has exhibited his usual courtesy, and for three days has kept extraordinary watch, and exerted extraordinary efforts to get the vessel in. He may be gruff to certain masters, at certain times, but never without cause. The abuse he has borne has most certainly been borne patiently. Perhaps on the highest tides of Friday next they may be successful in getting the Burgess into port. If not, then Capt. Sherritt will endeavor to make arrangements to proceed to San Francisco or Puget Sound to discharge. These are solid facts, respectfully submitted for publication.

Yours truly, D. C. IRELAND.

OREGON TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Some time ago, Messrs. Hodge, Davis & Co., of this city, read in a Massachusetts paper that Hon. Charles L. Ladd, auditor of that state, was afflicted with an incurable kidney disease, and had been obliged to give up work and return to his home. They immediately sent him a box of their celebrated Oregon Kidney Tea, and from time to time sent him other boxes. A few days ago they received from him the following letter:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Auditor's Dep't, Boston, Nov. 11, 1881.

Messrs. Hodge Davis & Co—DEAR SIRS—I have no hesitation in saying that I have been much benefited by the use of the Oregon Kidney Tea as a remedy for a kidney difficulty which has troubled me for six or eight years. I can heartily recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted, as a safe and agreeable remedy. I shall test its virtues further, for I have great faith in it as a specific for many diseases of the kidneys. Respectfully yours,

CHAS. R. LADD.

The original of this letter can be seen by calling on Messrs. Hodge Davis & Co., Portland, Oregon, and the Oregon Kidney Tea can be bought of any druggist or dealer, in Oregon or Washington. Price $1 per box.

such as SPERMATORRHŒA or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and some times from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.
